Three Motors to a Mile of Road

N the United States there are three motor vehicles for every mile of highway, and this includes all our unimproved roads.

The Federal Bureau of Public Roads estimates that the vehicle use of the public roads in the agricultural districts has increased 500 percent during the past 5 years; also that 15 percent of the main highway traffic is carried by motor truck.

Roads built even 10 years ago were not intended to withstand the impact of modern motor vehicles passing in a steady stream. The modern road must be built to withstand this tremendous shock.

For years the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has been producing material which has been used to provide many miles of road throughout the Middle West with cushion tops of paving asphalt—protect-ing the highways of town and country against the mighty shocks of modern traffic.

Good roads are a prime essential to national prosperity. The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) in creating a road covering of proved quality, is playing a vital part in the development of the Middle West.

Stanolind Paving Asphalt is refined from petroleum by distillation with steam agitation. It is an asphaltic cement of the very highest quality. It was devel-oped to conform to the needs of the modern high-way as determined by highway engineers working under actual road conditions in the Middle West.

In working out problems of highway construction to meet modern conditions, the Company is prepared to cooperate with any corporation, or engineer, engaged in road construction.

In the production of Stanolind Paving Asphalt, the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has added one more useful product to the long list of its achievements.

Stanolind Paving Asphalt in itself is essentially useful, and by reason of its manufacture as a by-product of petroleum, the Company has been able to hold down the cost of manufacture of Red Crown Gasoline, Perfection Kerosene, Polarine Lubricating Oils, and other major products, without disturbing their high quality, thereby exerting a deterrent influence on increasing the selling price of these products, which accrues directly to your individual benefit.

A NEEDED EXPANSION

The Christian Education Movement of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, is making large use of the creen in its educational program now ccupying the attention of the church. tereoptican lectures portray the work of Southern Methodism through her hools and colleges, showing what as been done and what is necessary be done if the ninety-one instituns of learning maintained by the surch are to be placed on a permaent foundation beyond the handicap f need.

In addition to these illustrated lectures which are being given at public territory, a unique and gripping mov-ing picture, called "Out of the Christian College," is being shown with effect at mass meetings and gatherings where facilities can be obtained for putting on a motion picture.

"Out of a Christian College" is a four-reel educational drama, . The scenario and supervision are the work of Elmer T. Clark, Litt. D., and the photography and mechanical work were done by the International Church Film Company, of New York City. The picture rights are the exclusive property of the Christian Education Movement of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

Those who have seen "Out of the Christian College," pronounce it most that Methodism is the child of Christian education, being born in Oxford University and having built a school before it ever had a church. The first neetings all over Southern Methodist general conference ever held in America projected Cokesbury College.

"Out of the Chirstian College" portrays the environment of a wellequipped Christian college, and the gradual unfolding of a new world to the young girl student, who through hard study and wholesome recreation is developed into well rounded Christian womanhood. Equally interesting, but less cheerful, is the reel in which is shown how the lack of college training dooms multitudes to lifelong mediocrity. In an intense moment Henry N. Snyder, in the role of college president, is forced to deny admission to the ambitious mountain youth because the over-crowded college is unable to receive him. As the college president watches the disappointed boy set out on the return trip to the dull, cramped life he has always known, a telegram is received from the mission board of his cheech, stating that the Southern Methodist Church is calling for 400 foreign Missionaries; 75 relief workers; 500 home missionaries, and 3,000 pastors during the next four years, and asking how many his college can

It is to meet the tragic need which during the past year forced Southern Methodist schools to deny admission to 5,000 young people on account of crowded conditions, that the Christian Education Movement was launched. Leaders in the denomination say that although Southern Methodism has so splendid a record as an educational church, she ranks only fifth with her sister denominations in educational holdings. The educational assets of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, are represented by ninety-one institutions of learning, consisting of universities, colleges, industrial and training schools—an · investment of $30,000,000. Through the Christian Education Movement, Southern Methodists propose to more than double this investment, enlarging, modernizing and stabilizing these institutions that they may touch every phase of lfe, moral, intellectual, physical, recreational, thus enabiling them to develop symmetrical Christian character

The closing thought in "Out of the Christian College" is that through large gifts to Christian education, men and women may erect for themselves immortal monuments and thus continue to live in the lives and deeds of

WHERE TO BOOST

YOUR OWN PRODUCT In a country town, In a farmers' co-operative store,

In the heart of a dairy community, In what is perhaps the nation's greatest dairy state, a product is beng advertised and sold in large quantities that is helping to keep down the prices of dairy cattle, milk, and other dairy products. This product is "oleomargerine," and the farmer is ited to one town but is common to the entire state. Dairymen should get back their own product. It has no substitute as a food. Produce clean milk. Use more milk. Use butter and cheese freely. Fight filled milk.

Feed more milk on the farm, In this state, farmers, townsmen, city men-everybody-should boost the products of our formers. When the farm products of a state are in kood demand and bring a good but reasonable price, the whole state is prosperous; the vast majority of cities are individually prosperous, you accept no imitations or aubstitutes.

THAT PESKY POISON IVY AGAIN

To those of us who live in the country and to those of us who love to wander through the quiet places, the season has arrived again for poison ivy. What shall we do when attacked?

First thing-soap and hot water in wholesale applications. The poison, after being deposited on the skin, requires some time to penetrate, and if this penetration can be prevented by thorough washing, eruption and irritation will not result. While exposed parts should be cleansed in this manner as soon after exposure as possible, it is worth while to make the attempt even twelve or twenty hours afterwards in the hope that at least a portion of the poison may be removed. A heavy lather should be produced and washing should be continued several minutes. Severe acrubbing with a brush is not advisable but several swabs or small compresses of gauze may be used, discarding each in turn, so that the poison may not be distributed by the cloth.

East Nashville, Tenn.- The effic lency of Thedford's Black-Draught, the genuine, herb, liver medicine, is vouched for by Mr. W. N. Parsons, a grocer of this city. an equal amount of water is also an effective preventive. Where exposure has been more general, a bath for the entire body, followed by a change of clothing is a good preventive. The hair should not be neglected. Bathing, if not accompanied by sufficient changing of water and cloths, may result in spreading the rash to skin that had not been infected. In cases that are at all serious a physician should be consulted.

Ointments should not be used in the acute stage of the disease. In the later stages, however, soothing and astringent ointments may be of value in allaying irirtation and hastening
